Ladoix

2022

THE CLIMAT

At the gates of the Côte de Beaune, Ladoix, Aloxe-Corton and Pernand-Vergelesses share the privilege of producing wines from the famous Corton slope. Its brown calcareous soil, rich in flint fragments, helps shape expressive and generous red wines.

THE WINE

This wine reveals a vibrant nose with notes of small red berries and aromatic herbs. Ample and generous, the palate opens with a crisp attack which gives way to cherry pit aromas. The lingering finish is enriched with earthly notes providing depth and authenticity.

THE VINTAGE

2022 is synonymous with a vintage of great quality and the return of satisfying volumes. After a mild and dry winter, the growing season arrived early. Spared by the April frost, the warm spring accelerated plant growth, favoring early flowering and optimal fruit set. After particularly dry spells during winter and spring, late June rains were timely. A hot, dry and at times scorching summer allowed for a good ripening, although in places the vines did react to hydric stress. Mid-August rainfall will be decisive by constant sunshine until the harvests, which started on 25th August in the Côte de Beaune and 2nd September in the Côte de Nuits.
